The Play

Marjorie Sokoloff's Snow White deals with genuine ideas and has a deep emotional resonance, while being as adventurous, silly and moving as any great fairy tales should be! Written to be adapted into small and large cast scenarios, this script is well paced, witty and with just the right amount of twists and turns.

This production features two casts of 32 young performers each (with some double casting) with a large ensemble creating the setting for each scene with their bodies, voices and shadows.

The Story

We begin our tale with a lonely young girl, shunned by the people of the town and lost in the woods. Before long she finds herself a place to call home, and along with that comes 'The Mirror'. The Mirror knows how to twist and manipulate and soon the young girl finds herself a young woman and strongly reliant on the mirror for company.

The tale continues with the attempted kidnapping of the baby Snow White, the untimely death of her adopted father 'The King' and finally Snow White's escape with help from the befuddled Handsome, the Chicken and seven little men with vastly different takes on life.

The story crescendos with a few bites from a poison apple and true love's kiss... but not quite how you remember it. The Witch is the only person Snow White can truly call her Mother and so finally we learn the important lesson, that beauty is not something you can find within a mirror.

And they all live happily ever after.
